Well, as usual with our snows, they don't last too long. The last one would have lasted for several days if the rain had not come along.

Tobacco growers were glad to see the rain however with somewhat warmer temperature than usual.

Expect that a lot of tobacco was taken during the past several days.

Our South American guinea pig (Peruvian Cavy) is still one of the sources of amusement at our house.

She can stand up on her back feet now and squeak. Heretofore she had stood on all fours and squeaked. We don't know what other positions she will squeak in but she will squeak no matter what.

Four year old leans over the box and stares at the guinea pig and the guinea pig stares right back. This keeps up for minutes at the time, and as far as we know it has been a draw thus far.

We wish that the Social Security law would be strengthened out before they think about raising the amount of money to be deducted.

Ohio Valley In For Cold Weather

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16. (AP)—The Weather Bureau said today the month from mid-January to mid-February will be colder than usual in most of the nation.

Warmer than normal weather is expected, however, in the South-west and along the Gulf Coast, the bureau said in its 30-day "out-look."

"The greatest unseasonable coldness," the forecast continued, "is expected over the Great Lakes region and the Ohio Valley."

"Precipitation is expected to exceed normal in the Gulf states and from the Appalachians eastward, with frequent snows from Virginia northward."

"Greater than normal precipitation is also predicted for central and southern portions of the West Coast states, and the northern Rocky Mountain states, but sub-normal amounts are indicated over the Great Lakes and upper Mississippi Valley."

"In areas not specified, about normal precipitation is expected."

Seek Robbers Of Diamonds

DETROIT (AP)—A New York jewelry dealer paced through thousands of rouses' gallery photographs today hoping to spot the two men he said robbed him of a half-million dollars worth of diamonds.

Anthony Seaton, 43, president of the Henri Antiques Galleries of New York, described one of the men as "dapper" and the other as "shabbily-dressed." He said they entered his downtown hotel suite Friday, bound him at sun-point and made off with 11 pieces of jewelry.

"I'll never forget the man who held the gun on me," Seaton said. "He had the most washed-out and cruel eyes I have ever seen."

Seaton said the missing pieces included three bracelets, three rings, three clips and two necklaces. He said they had a retail value of $500,000 and a wholesale value of $228,500.

Detroit police said it was the biggest jewelry robbery in the city's history.

Seaton told police he had withdrawn the pieces from the Statler Hotel vault and laid them out on a coffee table to show them to a prospective customer.

Then, Seaton said, two strangers knocked at the door and forced their way inside when he opened it. He said one of them held a gun on him while the other bound and gagged him with tape and cord.

This Week's Balance Sheet In The Hot And Cold War

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor

The week's balance sheet between the good and bad news in the hot and cold war:

The Good
1. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles formally unveiled a "new look" United States foreign policy aimed at meeting an aggressor with "a great capacity to retaliate, instantly, by means and at places of our choosing." The announcement was interpreted as the end of the old "containment" policy against Communism and clear warning that in the future, the United States will feel free to strike directly at the source—in other words, at Red China or Russia.

2. Diplomatic reports reaching London reported signs of strain between Red China and her Russian partner. The Chinese were reported unhappy over the amount of material aid they are receiving from Russia, particularly in machine tools, construction equipment and other items to go into China's industrialization program. The Russians, who are said to have a half-million experts in China in charge of various industries, reportedly took the position that no more big shipments should be made to the Chinese until they have the technicians to handle them.

The Bad
1. The Neutral Nations Commission whose job it was to hold Korean War prisoners until they either had been repatriated or released to civilian status, admitted failure and announced that it would return all of the more than 22,000 prisoners still in their hands to original captors. Indian Chairman Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya, who made the announcement, said it would be illegal for either side to let the prisoners go until their fate had been decided by a Korean political conference. However, the United Nations Commission indicated no change in its plans to release its Chinese and North Korean prisoners as of 12:01 a.m. Jan. 23.

2. The four-power military commanders in divided Berlin also admitted failure in their efforts to arrange a site for the foreign ministers' conference, scheduled for Jan. 25. The break-up was over Russian insistence that at least half the meetings be held in Soviet-controlled East Berlin, against a United States, British, French proposal for a rotating schedule. The question was referred back to home governments, amid mounting doubt that the Reds really wanted the conference to be held.

3. The Communist menace in Italy—a keystone in the North Atlantic treaty alliance, and in hopes for European unity—was graver than at any time since 1948. A Christian Democrat little known outside of Italy, named Amintore Fanfani was trying to form a government which would be keyed to social reforms to lift the standard of living and fight rising unemployment. Failure might bring on the dangerous alternative of general elections and the chance that the Reds could take over Italy.

Cigarette Tax, Beer And Wine, Betting Approved

By THOMAS E. GISH
United Press Staff Correspondent

FRANKFORT (AP)—Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby's control of the Kentucky General Assembly appeared lighter than ever today, on the basis of the overwhelming votes by which the House yesterday approved three of his major money bills.

The House approved in rapid-fire order the governor's measures to increase the cigarette tax one cent, from 2 cents to 3 cents on each package; to increase the consumption taxes on beer and wine; and to increase the state's share of the take on parimutuel betting at race tracks.

Two other key fiscal bills—the record-breaking $175,000,000 biennial budget, and a measure to set up a system for withholding state income taxes—were held over until the House reconvenes Wednesday, because the bills had not yet been returned from the printer.

There seemed little doubt they would pass by similarly sweeping margins, or that the whole fiscal program would meet with the same easy sliding in the Senate.

The cigarette tax went through by a vote of 77-14, despite opposition from the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, which expressed fears that an increased tax on tobacco products might open the way to similar moves in non-tobacco producing states.

The beer and wine tax bill was given an even bigger majority, 88 to 6, with the only opposition coming from Rep. Euflex Walsh, a Jefferson County Democrat, and five Northern Kentucky delegates.

Reps. Vernon O. Cottingham, James A. Dressman Jr., John L. Day and Thomas P. Fitzpatrick, all Kenton County Democrats; Rep. Charles W. Wirsch, Campbell county Republican.

The most impressive administrative victory of all came on the parimutuel bill. Even as influential groups in Fayette County were rallying to fight the bill, especially the removal of Keeneland track's exemption from the tax, the House gave its approval, 92 to 2.

The only votes against it came from the two Fayette County representatives, Democrats John Y. Brown and Foster Ockerman.

It was an impressive display of strength that required only 28 minutes by the clock.

Brown attempted to amend the racing bill to preserve Keeneland's immunity "in light of the aid given by the track to the University of Kentucky." His motion was drowned by a thundering wave of "no's."

During the parimutuel discussion in the House yesterday, Rep. Morris Weintraub, D-Campbell, asked Rep. John Y. Brown, D-Fayette, if the latter would object to an amendment to legalize bingo when played for charity.

City Council Holds Regular Meeting

The Murray City Council met last night at the City Hall with Mayor George Hart presiding. All councilmen were present.

J. H. Shackelford, local accountant, read a complete audit of the city's finances, which the council approved.

In other action the council accepted the report of William Parks, chairman of the zoning committee. Mr. Parks made a report to the council on the industrial, business and residential zones including the newly annexed area to the city.

Downs and Speight, and Harvey Hall made requests for licenses to sell coal like the city. Downs and Speight would have a business located just outside the 250 foot mark on South 16th Street off Main and Hall's business would be located on the Coldwater River. Permission to issue licenses was granted.

E. S. Ferguson appeared before the council and gave members a recent report from TVA electricity using cities.

D. L. Divilbiss and Jack Frost Sr. appeared before the city to explain a garbage disposal system that the city could operate. Mr. Frost gave a detailed explanation of the financing of such a project. The council said that they would take the matter under consideration.

Several different methods have been proposed in the past. Mr. Frost had figures available on towns of comparative size with Murray.

City Judge C. T. Rushing, Chief of Police Olin Warren and City Attorney Nat Ryan Hughes were welcomed by the council to the city group. Each told the council that they wished to cooperate fully with the other officers of the city to bring about a progressive spirit.

The council voted to re-decorate the office of the city judge.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By H. C. CHILES

JESUS AND NICODEMUS
John 3:1-16

This scripture lesson contains the record of an interesting conversation between a prominent teacher and the only Saviour. The interview took place at night while Christ was still at Jerusalem, where He had come to attend the Passover.

I. The Inquiry, John 3:1.

This inquirer is described at length in verse one. "There was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews." The Pharisees composed the most popular and patriotic party. They were noted for their orthodox creed and punctilious observance of the Jewish ritual. They were proud, exclusive, boastful of their good deeds, strict adherents to traditional beliefs and precise in their religious worship. They hated Christ and opposed Him even unto death itself.

Nicodemus was a ruler of the Jews. That implies that he was a member of the Sanhedrin, which was the highest position within the gift of his nation. This position demanded and involved an irreproachable life, a splendid reputation, a good education, a great power, a wide influence and vast responsibilities. To him the people looked for instruction and guidance.

Nicodemus was a man of culture, refinement and zeal for the law. He was one of the most religious men of his day, honest in his convictions and sincere in his desire to do right. He has an inquiring mind and a passion for the truth. Consequently, he refused to let prejudice blind him. He knew that it was easy for one to close his mind to the truth that he did not wish to accept, to shut his ears to that which he did not want to hear. He also knew that such conduct was just as dangerous as it was easy, so he determined to know and to follow the truth. Even though he had position, power, prestige and prosperity, yet there was a real void in his heart. Although he was very religious, he was not satisfied with his religion. He knew that he had not learned the real secret of the best way of life, but he was convinced, on the basis of what he had seen and heard, that Christ Jesus knew that secret. Being anxious to hear what He had to say about the way of salvation, he sought an interview with Him.

II. The Inquiry, John 3:2-4.

Under cover of darkness, Nicodemus made his silent and unperceived way to the house where the Saviour was stopping. Some have branded his coming to Christ at night as an act of cowardice, but that attitude is foreign to the scriptures. It is more reasonable to assume that he came in the night for quietness and privacy. Surrounded by the multitude that had been attracted and consulted at length by one who without being interrupted by the crowd.

Nicodemus readily discovered that Christ was easily accessible and happily approachable. Modestly and as if speaking for others as much as for himself, he said, "We know that from God Thou art come as a teacher," meaning that He was commissioned by and sent from God. To Nicodemus' reference to the miracle, Christ made no reply, but with startling abruptness He talked to him about the new birth.

III. The Instruction, John 3:5-16.

Christ told Nicodemus that "unless one is born anew" he can never receive the benefits of the kingdom of God. Thus Christ made it plain to him that he needed a Saviour instead of a teacher. All the unsaved need a Saviour and all the saved need a teacher. The Master selected this one man, a splendid example of the natural man at his best, to emphasize the one great need of every person—the new birth.

This new birth is not synonymous with the natural birth; in fact, it is impossible for one to be born of the Spirit by any natural birth (v.8). The education of the natural man is not equivalent to the new birth. Education dispels ignorance and eliminates coarse tastes and crude practices, but it cannot produce the new birth or serve as a substitute for it. neither is it the reformation of the outward man. An individual can work out his reformation, but God alone can bring about the new birth. It is a creative act of God instead of a reformation on the part of men. Honesty, decency, morality, generosity and upright citizenship are good and laudable, but they can never produce the new birth (Titus 3:5-6). A change of feeling is not the new birth. Feelings are often changed by the weather or by the circumstances of life. We may have a change of feeling without experiencing the new birth, but one cannot experience the new birth without a change of feeling.

The new birth is the impartation of the divine nature to human beings (II Peter 1:2-4). As in the first, or physical, birth we become partakers of human nature, so in the second, or spiritual, birth we become partakers of the divine nature. The new birth is both a divine and conscious change, for which there is no substitute. It is the work of God, something which He does for us.

How may one know that he has experienced the new birth? By the testimony of the Spirit of God (Romans 8:16, I John 3:10), by his love for God's children (I John 3:14), by his victory over sin (I John 3:9), by a desire to please the Lord (I John 2:3), by a changed life (II Corinthians 5:17) and by a passion for the salvation of the lost.

Nowhere in all divine revelation is the message of grace and love more beautifully or more fully revealed than in verse sixteen. No greater message was ever given to the world by the Master Teacher than the one contained in these words. As far as language can express it, the height, the depth, the length and the breadth of the love of God are here unfolded.

God's love is here announced in such wonderful simplicity and yet with such unfathomable grace that it seems to be presumptuous to try to make the message plainer. No words are needed to enhance the wonder and the glory of His love. God has made a wonderful provision for our great need. His love was the source from which this gracious provision has come. Salvation is of God. It finds its birth in His love. It was wrought out by His Son. It is made effective through personal faith. His love is universal. It has been manifested to the end that all who will may have eternal life.

God loved all men enough to give His Son to die to save them. This love, as expressed in this verse, has rescued multitudes from despair, brought hope into their hearts, and influenced them to put their trust in Christ and depend on Him alone for salvation. Have you come to the place where you have actually made a definite and deliberate commitment of your soul to Him? If not, do so now.

"The American economy is one of the wonders of the world this administration is determined to keep our economy strong and to keep it growing."

FACTS WE SHOULD KNOW

Did you know that Calloway County had 16 cases of polio last summer?

Did you know that the local chapter alone spent over $3,000 to aid these sixteen cases?

Did you know that the National Foundation spent over $4,500 on Gamma Globulin for Calloway County children?

And, did you know that the continuing expense of treatment for the above and past polio cases amounts to many hundreds of dollars each year.

This money spent last year came from the dollars and dimes contributed by the men, women and children of Calloway County and others in the nation.

The citizens of Calloway County have a great job to do this year because of the high incidence of the disease in the county last summer. No one knows what the story will be next summer.

A preventive for polio is near, but even this preventive serum will cost money, as Gamma Globulin does now.

Let's respond to the appeal of the local polio chapter and get our donations in as early as possible.

3. Both Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson and Allied Supreme Commander Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther had reassuring words for the United States European allies. Gruenther said Russia has "no answer" now to Allied long range atom-bomb-carrying power, and he doubted the Russians had enough ground strength in occupied Europe to "overcome" the Allied shield. Wilson added the note that the United States does not contemplate any withdrawal of ground or sea forces from Western Europe.

The Bad
1. The Neutral Nations Commission whose job it was to hold Korean War prisoners until they either had been repatriated or released to civilian status, admitted failure and announced that on Wednesday, Jan. 20, they would return all of the more than 22,000 prisoners still in their hands to original captors. Indian Chairman Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya, who made the announcement, said it would be illegal for either side to let the prisoners go until their fate had been decided by a Korean political conference.

However, the United Nations Command indicated no change in its plan to release its Chinese and North Korean prisoners as of 12:01 a.m. Jan. 23.

2. The four-power military commanders in divided Berlin also admitted failure in their efforts to arrange a site for the foreign ministers' conference scheduled for Jan. 25. The break-up was over Russian insistence that at least half the meetings be held in Soviet-controlled East Berlin, against a United States, British, French proposal for a rotating schedule.

The question was referred back to home governments, amid mounting doubt that the Reds really wanted the conference to be held.

3. The Communist menace in Italy—a keystone in the North Atlantic treaty alliance and in hopes for European unity—was graver than at any time since 1948. A Communist-led "little-known" outside of Italy, named Amintore Fanfani was trying to form a government which would be keyed to social reforms to lift the standard of living and fight rising unemployment. Failure might bring on the dangerous alternative of general elections and the chance that the Reds could take over Italy.

4. Both Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson and Allied Supreme Commander Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther had reassuring words for the United States European allies. Gruenther said Russia has "no answer" now to Allied long range atom-bomb-carrying power, and he doubted the Russians had enough ground strength in occupied Europe to "overcome" the Allied shield. Wilson added the note that the United States does not contemplate any withdrawal of ground or sea forces from Western Europe.

Cigarette Tax, Beer And Wine, Betting Approved

By THOMAS E. GISH
United Press Staff Correspondent

FRANKFORT (AP)—Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby's control of the Kentucky General Assembly appeared lighter than ever today, on the basis of the overwhelming votes by which the House yesterday approved three of his major money bills.

The House approved in rapid-fire order the governor's measures to increase the cigarette tax one cent, from 2 cents to 3 cents on each package; to increase the consumption taxes on beer and wine; and to increase the state's share of the take on parimutuel betting at race tracks.

Two other key fiscal bills—the record-breaking $175,000,000 biennial budget, and a measure to set up a system for withholding state income taxes—were held over until the House reconvenes Wednesday, because the bills had not yet been returned from the printer.

There seemed little doubt they would pass by similar sweeping margins, or that the whole fiscal program would meet with the same easy sledding in the Senate.

The cigarette tax went through by a vote of 77-14, despite opposition from the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, which expressed fears that an increased tax on tobacco products might open the way to similar moves in non-tobacco producing states.

The beer and wine tax bill was given an even bigger majority, 88 to 6, with the only opposition coming from Rep. Rutledge, a Jefferson County Democrat, and five Northern Kentucky delegates.

The most impressive administrative victory of all came on the parimutuel bill. Even as influential groups in Fayette County were rallying to fight the bill, especially the removal of Keeneland tracks exemption from the tax, the House gave its approval, 92 to 2.

The only votes against it came from the two Fayette County representatives, Democrats John Y. Brown and Foster Ockerman.

It was an impressive display of strength that required only 28 minutes by the clock.

Brown attempted to amend the racing bill to preserve Keeneland's immunity "in light of the aid given by the track to the University of Kentucky." His motion was drowned by a thundering wave of "no's."

During the parimutuel discussion in the House yesterday, Rep. Morris Weintraub, D-Campbell, asked Rep. John Y. Brown, D-Fayette if the latter would object to an amendment to legalize bingo when played for charity.

The Murray City Council met last night at the City Hall with Mayor George Hart presiding. All councilmen were present.

J. H. Shackelford, local accountant, read a complete audit of the city's finances, which the council approved.

In other action the council accepted the report of William Parks, chairman of the zoning committee. Mr. Parks made a report to the council on the industrial, business and residential zones including the newly annexed area to the city.

Downs and Speight, and Harvey Hall made requests for licenses to sell coal in the city. Downs and Speight would have a business located just outside the 250 foot mark on South 16th Street off Main and Hall's business would be located on the Coldwater Road.

Permission to issue licenses was granted.

E. S. Ferguson appeared before the council and gave members a recent report from TVA electricity using cities.

D. L. Divilbiss and Jack Frost Sr. appeared before the city to explain a garbage disposal system that the city could operate. Mr. Frost gave a detailed explanation of the financing of such a project.

The council said that they would take the matter under consideration.

Several different methods have been proposed in the past. Mr. Frost had figures available on towns of comparative size with Murray.

City Judge C. T. Rushing, Chief of Police Ollis Warren and City Attorney Nat Ryan Hughes were welcomed by the council to the city group. Each told the council that they wished to cooperate fully with the other officers of the city to bring about a progressive spirit.

The council voted to redecorate the office of the city judge.

IS IT TIME TO GO TO WORK?

We hear a great deal of complaining about economic conditions as they finally turned out to be last year, and it seems many people face the future with fear and trembling.

There are undoubtedly more individuals and firms in trouble financially, but the figures prove 1953 was a good year. In fact, the best we ever had.

Why, then, are so many unable to meet their obligations? Is it because their income was less last year, or is it because they live too high?

Our prospects for the future are good, so far as we are able to see, but we believe the boom is definitely over, and that it is time to go to work.

The years ahead will bring about many adjustments if we remain at peace, even if it is an uneasy peace such as the one we now have.

In periods of adjustment "men are separated from boys" and producers reap the reward they are entitled to in a private enterprise society.

During a boom there is no way to tell a "boy from a man," figuratively speaking. Everybody gets the same wages, rates usually being based on a maximum earning power, rather than a minimum.

As conditions return to normal, and three million or more men on the federal payrolls, or drawing some form of welfare begin to seek jobs, is there any wonder that employers become "choosy," and ask for a standard of production in the neighborhood of something reasonable? The less productive workers may expect to be weeded out, and this in itself means the end of the boom, the honeymoon, or the fool's paradise we have been living in for more than ten years.

Since the end of World War Two several million new families have been established and they "settled down" while husbands were either in college, or in the armed forces. They were enabled to do so at the expense of the government, their parents, or both, or because the wife was gainfully employed.

This is an abnormal condition and adjustments will, as always, be painful, and with many they will be more painful than ever because so many heads of families have never even earned their own living, much less that of a wife and one or more children.

Heretofore this country has come through post-war periods and made necessary adjustments without fatal consequences, although there is always suffering and hardship.

We have prayed for peace and looked forward to the time when we would not have to draft our sons into the armed forces. Also we have hoped inflation would end, and conditions would become "normal."

We may as well realize that the return to peace economy will cause some unemployment. We have said we want just what it looks like we are going to get. Millions will welcome the change, even though it may cause economic readjustments, because they had rather work than fight.

 By OSCAR FRALEY
 United Press Sports Writer
 NEW YORK, Jan. 16. (U.P.)—Indications are increasingly evident today that heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano may time up against Philadelphia's Dan Baccaroni in March for a big June title defense against Ezzard Charles.

The Marciano camp isn't taking Charles too lightly, particularly in view of the fact that the Rock hasn't fought since last September—and the theory, well-founded or not, is that Baccaroni wouldn't be too tough a proof of the weariness of Charles is the fact that the early odds on Marciano are no better than 2 to 1.

American League home run statistics are evidence of what the return of Ted Williams means to the Boston Red Sox in the matter of power. The Sox hit only two homers in Washington's spacious Griffith Stadium all last season. Williams hit them both after his late return in August.

Happy Birthday: Today, Dixie Dean 43 and Earl Wooten 30; Sunday, Sammy Angott 39 and Olin Dutra 37; Monday, Walter Cooper 39 and Bill McGowan 39; Wednesday, Spike Briggs 42; Sam Jethroe 32; Willie Turnesa 40 and Aldo Forte 36; Thursday, Sam Mele 31; Bliz Donnelly 39 and Lou Fonseca 54; Friday, Ira Thomas 73 and Elmer Lach 36.

Some of the overtime periods seem longer than that, but just 52 years ago Wednesday the game of basketball was invented. Dr. James Naismith did it with his little peach basket in the Springfield, Mass., YMCA—and you might say it did more for the growth of American youth than all the vitamins ever discovered.

PeeWee Reese, the Brooklyn Dodger shortstop, still is given a couple of more years even though he is crowding 35 but you can understand the "dixie" of the Brooklyn brain trust as they prepare to inspect Don Zimmer, his heir apparent, this spring.

Zimmer, with St. Paul last summer, was leading the American Association in homers and runs batted in when he was beaned so severely that there were fears he might never play again. He recuperated at season's end—but now they are wondering whether he'll slip into the ball at the plate as he did before he was injured.

Jack Junior Stephens, Notre Dame's star basketball guard, was a briefly spectacular football candidate a year ago. But he fell from gridiron duty because a number of backs were sidelined by injuries, he made the opening tackle in the 1952 Purdue game which caused a fumble. Notre Dame recovered and scored two plays later—the question seems to be, how did he get away from Frank Leahy last fall?

CHAPTER NINETEEN

Dale started swimming away from Phil, out to the buoy. Halfway out she rested, floating motionlessly with her face up and basking in sunshine. She would not think of Kelly. She circled the buoy and swam back.

"Not bad," Phil said, climbing out and hauling her up on the deck. "Not bad at all, for a girl."

"Thanks," she said.

He grinned. "All my compliments today are gratis. . . About that phrase of your grandmother's, Dale, I think I'd enjoy being your young man." He stretched out close to her on the sun-hot cement.

Dale did not move. Even when he kissed her lightly, she did not move. Then he put his hand firmly under her chin and turned her face to his. This kiss was real. Dale felt warmth rising in her, pounding at her temples and pushing away thought until only feeling was left. Her whole body was alive and throbbing.

"Dale," he whispered.

The word brought a semblance of reason, and she realized that she was not only taking his kisses but giving them back. She stirred slowly in his arms. "Don't," she said, against his mouth. "Don't."

"Why not?" But he let her go. "You liked it, too. You did that other time, too, for all your pretense at anger. What's wrong with letting yourself feel an honest emotion?"

"Honest!" She sat straight up. "I didn't kiss you that night. It was Kelly I kissed."

He drew back from her, white to the lips. After a silence, he said softly, "You can be honest." He linked his fingers around her ankle, tightened his grasp. "This time—a moment ago—was that for him, too?"

She didn't answer.

"Was it?"

She pushed at his hand. "You're hurting me."

He let her go, and then he saw the thin red streak around her ankle. "You've cut yourself."

"It's only a scratch, from a thistle."

He put his hand on her, gently this time. "I've made it bleed."

"It's all right," she jerked her ankle away.

He laughed softly and drew her to his feet. "Come on, I'll show you my swim dive. Very graceful. If I do say so myself."

But he clowned it on the springboard, craned face first into the water, and came up grinning—and to Dale's enormous relief, the mood of lightness was restored.

The afternoon waned. The lake changed from turquoise to gray; the breeze from shore held the chill of oncoming night.

Walking to the house for dinner, Phil tilted his head inquiringly toward the white clapboard cottage. "Who lives there?"

Dale looked straight ahead. "No one."

"I thought I saw a ghost creeping around the rosebushes."

She whirled around, nostrils flaring, facing him on the narrow path. "You know very well that I lived there with Kelly!"

"Yes. Your grandmother told me." His voice was flat. "She also said you hadn't been inside the house since his death. Why, Dale? Scared—or just being dramatic?"

She walked on quickly, her head high. "It is none of your business."

"All right," he agreed, "we won't talk about it. But I can't figure you out. Some challenges you meet head-on, others you run from like crazy. It's just a house, after all."

She was ahead of him on the path, hurrying. Overgrown raspberry canes scratched her legs. "Don't bother trying to figure me out," she said. "Just let me alone."

"How can I, if I'm going to be your young man?"

"You're not," she said shortly.

At dinner, Grandy commented on Dale's quietness.

"She's mad at me," Phil said cheerfully, lowering his eyelids.

"She's sulking."

Grandmother looked surprised and solicitous. "Dale never sulks."

"Of course I don't!" Dale said furiously.

"Tch-tch," chuckled Phil. "Temper!"

Dale laughed. Phil the featherweight, Phil the Darby to any Joan, Phil the fool. It was not possible to take him seriously, or to remain angry with him. Why let his remarks disturb her?

After dinner, they played Grandy's favorite martial recordings on the radio-phonograph.

"The Army," Grandy remarked, tapping a brisk toe to the beat, "is recruiting musicians. I heard specifically for bagpipers."

Dale winked at Grandmother and said to Phil, "Grandy puts the bagpipers in the same category as the piano and the violin. In terms of artistry, he says a real good bagpiper has at least the stature of a Beethoven or a Beethoven. Just hump the bagpipe with the harmonica or the kazoo, and see how defensive Grandy becomes!"

"Do you play the pipes, sir?" Phil asked.

"That I do! Want I should play for you?" He looked over at Dale triumphantly. "In the closet, Dale. Under my raincoat."

Dale grinned at Phil. "You asked for it, my boy, with that tone of respect!"
